Undergraduate Programs

Sociology may be defined as the scientific study of human society and the social interactions which emerge among people. Sociology seeks to develop a body of interrelated scientific propositions or generalizations that explain social behavior in holistic terms. Its basic goal is to understand how human beings fit their activities together into a system of stable (and sometimes unstable) social arrangements. As such, sociology focuses on the groups, organizations, institutions and communities which make up the larger society. Sociology seeks to place society in the international setting of today's changing world. More importantly, it helps us to understand the relationships among these various social units and the implications of these relationships for order and change.

Required courses in the following programs of study may have prerequisites. Reference the course description section for clarification.
